C-130J Sale to international customer

Marshall is pleased to announce that the ex-RAF fleet of C-130J aircraft are being sold by UK MoD to an international customer with a contract signed by Marshall on 14th February 2025.

Under the new contract with the international customer, Marshall will undertake the necessary maintenance and modifications to return the ex-RAF C-130J aircraft to an airworthy condition. The value of this new contract is over £200m, this includes ongoing maintenance and support of the aircraft.

The sale will need to be approved by the United States Government under the International Traffic in Arms Regulations (ITAR) as the aircraft were originally manufactured in the United States, this process has already commenced.

Roger Hardy, Chair, said "This new contract is an excellent development for Marshall. It secures work in our Cambridge hangars until 2028 and adds another international customer to our extensive portfolio for which we provide C-130 support".
